CALL FOR PAPERS

Student Conference
Graduate Studies in French
University of Toronto

April 23 and 24, 1999

"Thresholds" We invite students from any area of French studies - linguistics, literature, pedagogy, cultural studies, feminist studies - to submit proposals for presentations to be given in a relaxed atmosphere and within an interdisciplinary setting. At the threshold of the new millennium, we are aiming to study changes in the analysis of text and context, and of the structures and function of language. We are looking to explore the endings of old theories and the beginnings of new methodologies. Thus, through diverse topics and critical approaches, we hope to bring to light the transitions which are taking place within narratives and language and within literary and linguistic analyses.

We invite you to submit proposals for twenty-minute presentations dealing with a wide variety of subjects, such as applied or theoretical linguistics, comparative literature, language acquisition, feminist criticism, any literary study from all periods and all genres, translation, pragmatics, cinema, the Internet, or the subject of your choice.
